OSMBC - a CMS to publish weeklyOSM

“Just Blogging” is easy today for everybody... - even people who shouldn’t be doing it can do it :)

What is still tough:
Collecting & Evaluating & Writing & Summarising & Translating & Synchronising:

- multiple topics (from the very heterogene OSM sphere)
- from multiple media (mailing lists, forum, blogs, professional journals, twitter etc ...)
- with several contributors / editors
- with different cultural background
- translating all articles into multiple languages
- and releasing them as fast as possible
    - as soon as the translations are ready
    - and spreading the word (mailing lists, forums, blogs, twitter)

And keeping track of all the above… except you use OSMBC :)

1. Aktiv formulieren, NICHT passiv!
Beispiel: OpenCage Data veröffentlicht ein Interview mit David Overton, dem Macher hinter der Stoffkarten produzierenden Firma Splashmaps. (via Twitter)
2. Personen/Unternehmen sind Nachrichten! Deshalb ... möglichst immer mit einer Person/Unternehmen beginnen!
3. Eine komplexe Meldung lieber in zwei Sätze aufteilen, statt mit Nebensätzen zu arbeiten.
4. Satzzeichen - auch Klammern() stehen immer ohne Leerzeichen direkt beim Wort. (DIN 5008)
'no translation' or '-' to specify no translation wanted.

1. Formulate not passive, but active.
Sample: OpenCage data published an interview with David Overton, the doer behind the tissue map producing company Splashmaps. (via Twitter)
2. People & companies are information! So start an article with e person or a company!
3. Decomplify your sentences.
4. (Satzzeichen - auch Klammern() stehen immer ohne Leerzeichen direkt beim Wort. (DIN 5008))
'no translation' or '-' to specify no translation wanted.
